'78

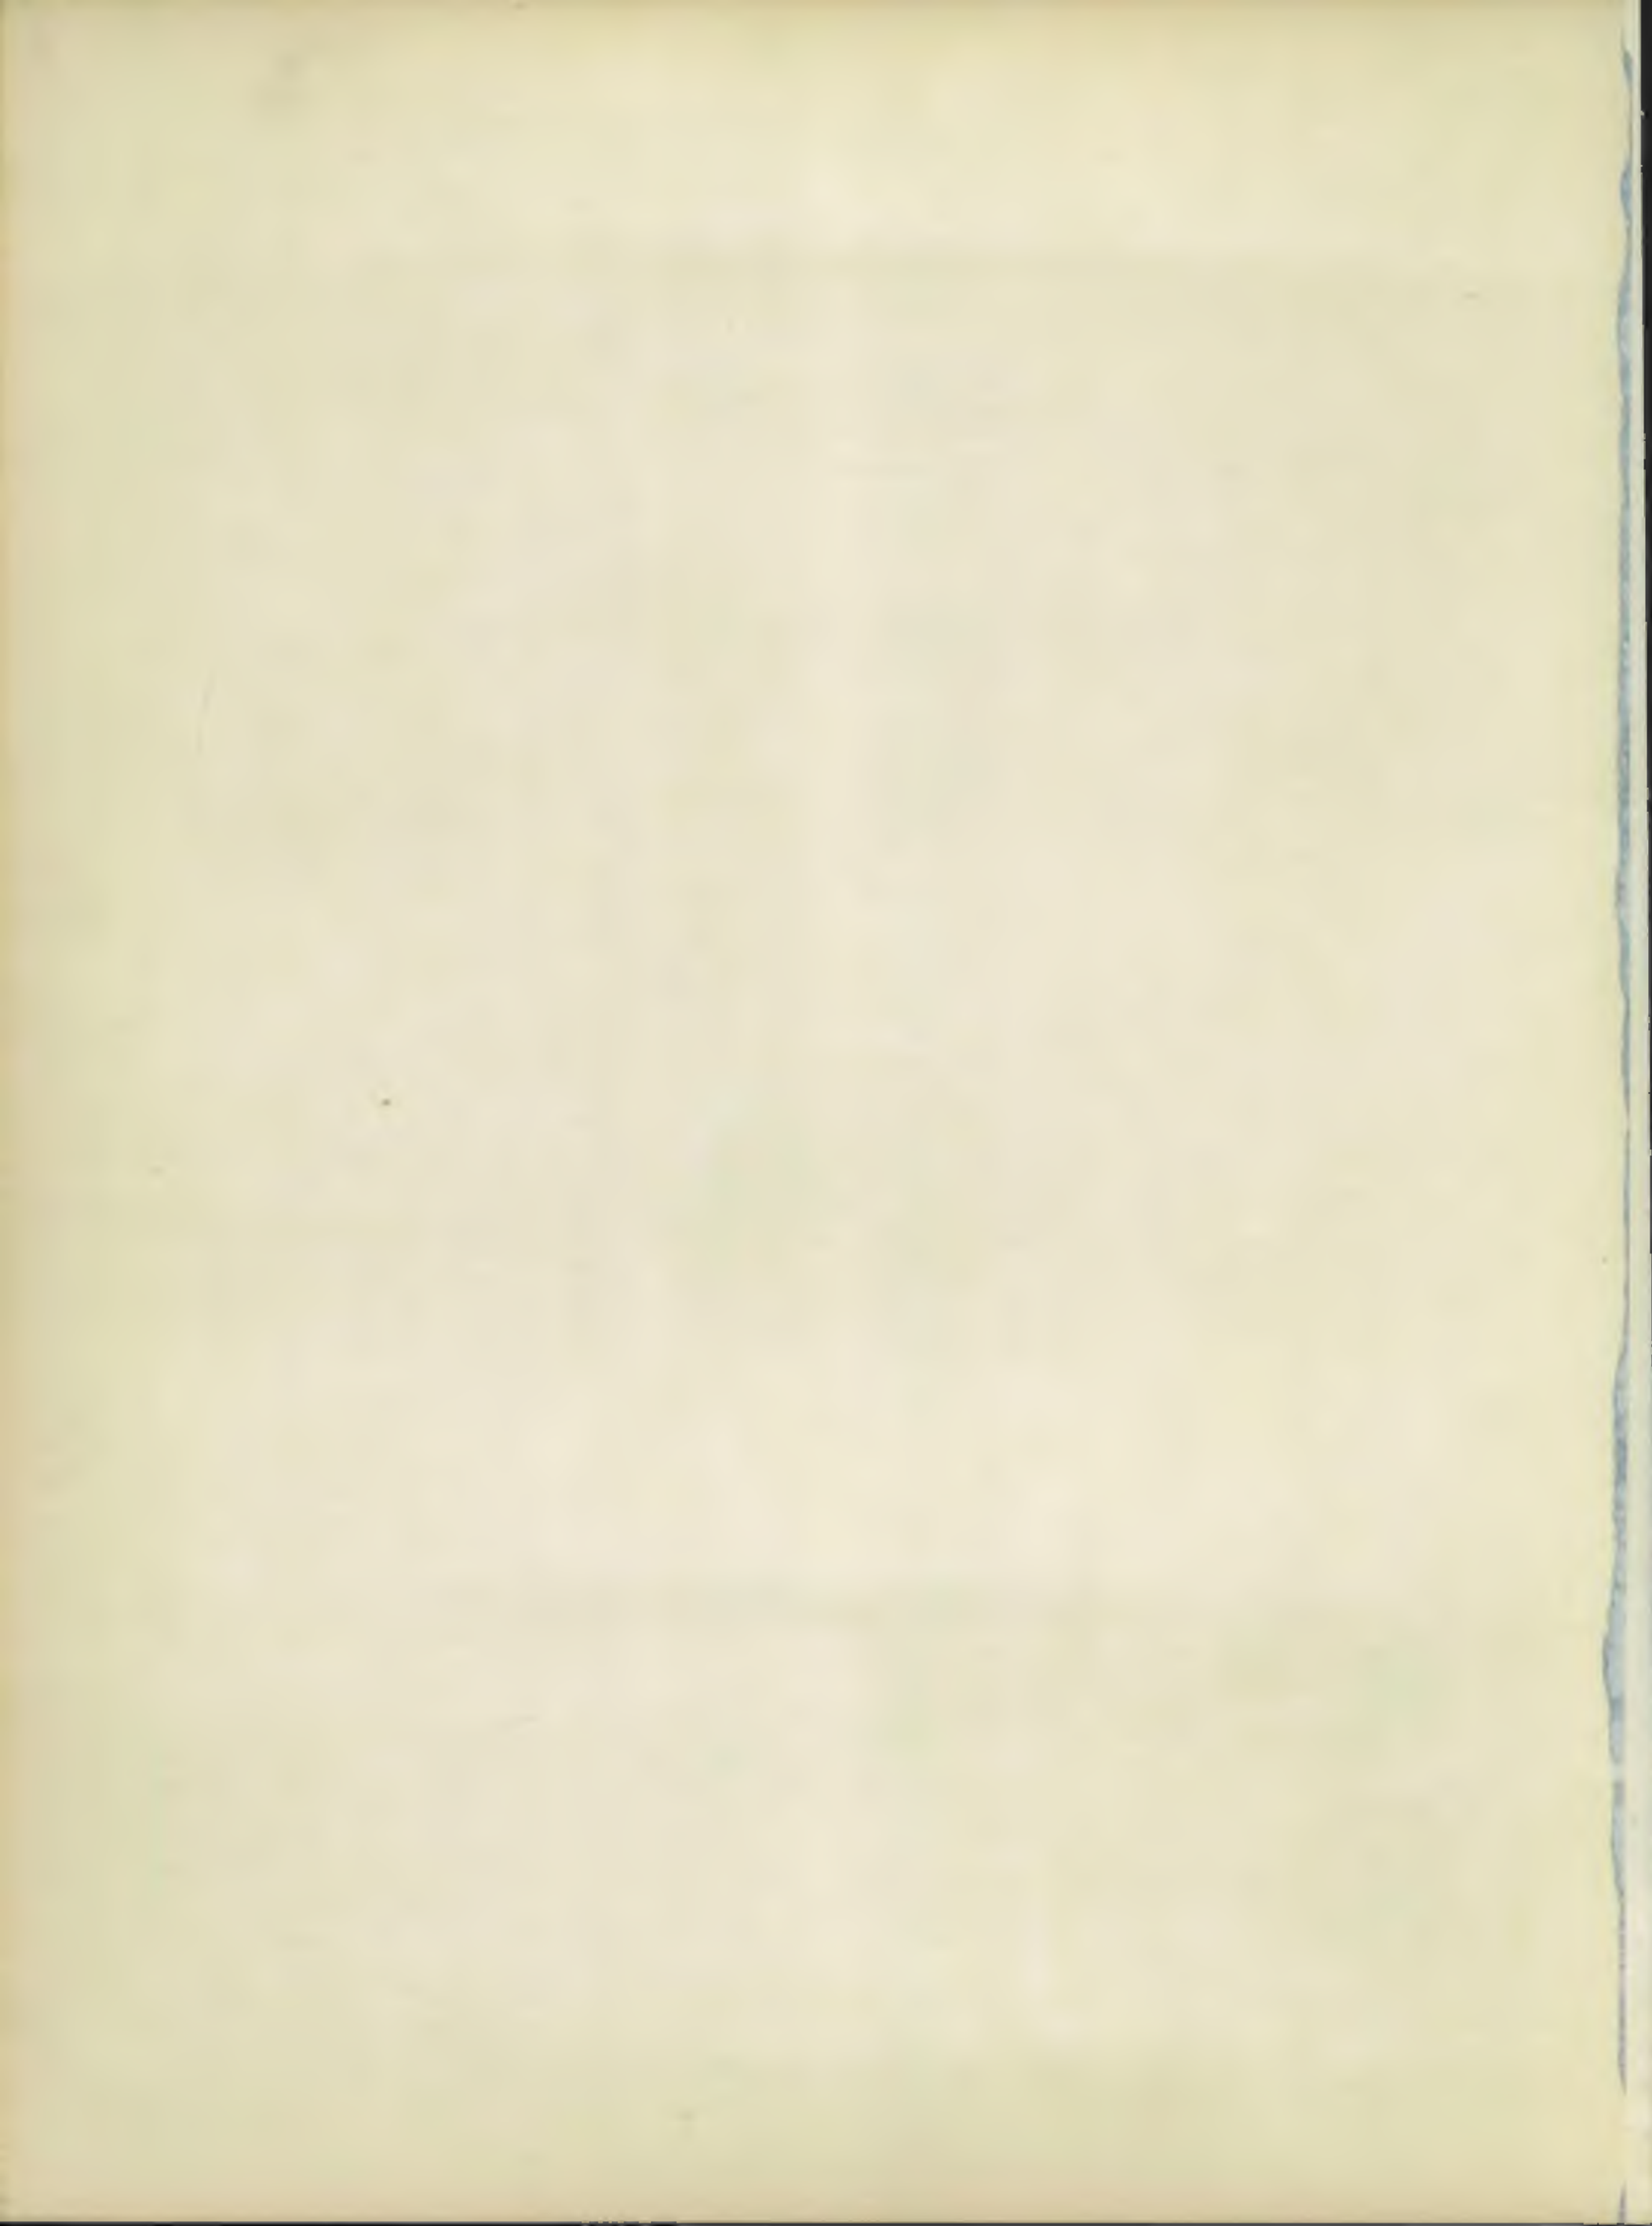

H<sub>2</sub>O GATE

1975

Edgewater High School
Orlando, Florida
Volume 27 — 1979

It's deadly when Greg Hurlebaus' calculator breaks down during a chem test.

David and Donald Erdman — Edgewater's hopeless gourmets.

Do you realize how long it took P. Arch to yo yo right?

Artists splash Graffiti on the walls of the Jr. Soph cafeteria.

Nancy Blumen plays her brother in a game of TV tennis.

The 70's were a decade of triumph and disaster,
 As mankind progressed faster and faster.
 We all remember events that were sad,
 Yet happiness, laughter and excitement we had.
 Kids used the easy-bake oven, then the microwave came
 And soon people were playing the TV tennis game.
 Calculators and CB's, brought us some ease,
 So we could roll houses and skateboard in the breeze.

Kitty wanna clacker?

"Burnt Is Beautiful" is Marc Brenner's motto.

Tina Chaudoin is glad to give her handle to Joey McDade.

Looking back at the people in the past ten years,
Some brought pride, others laughter, then tears.
Kennedy, Johnson then Nixon all were In the White House where now sits Jimmy Carter.
From Redford, Newman and Streisand we went To Travolta, Winkler and Farrah Fawcett.

A Star Is Born! Julie Carlton portrays Barbra Streisand.

B. Hussey looks just like Carter! Can't you see the resemblance in the eyes?

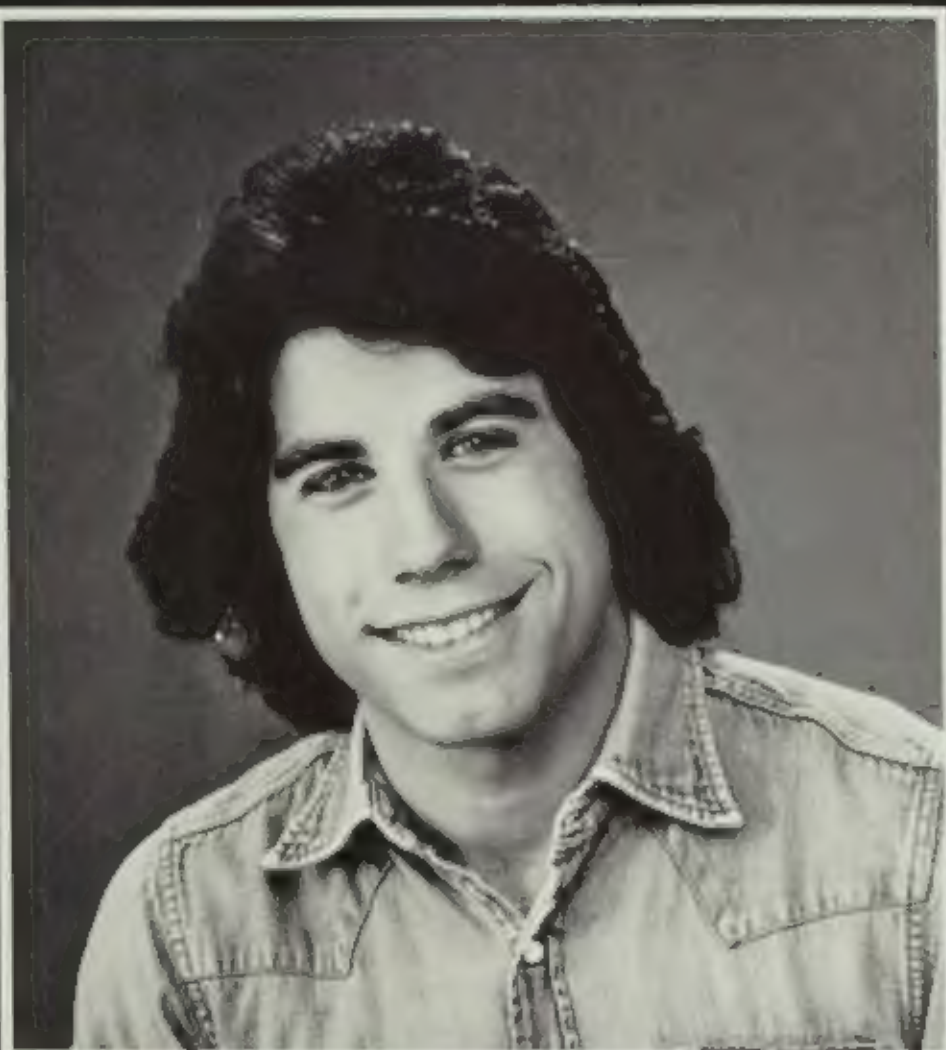

Patricia Hearst — arrested in 1976.

Picture picture on the page. Who's the Farrah-est in our age? Why it's Donna Webb, our poster of the week!

John Travolta — A big celebrity of the '70's.

Without his mustache, Mark Spitz looks just like Pat Brown!

Wendy Meer and Ben Weiner show off their mopeds. What hams!

Lee Gallagher displays his fine talent in skateboarding.

This is why we had a toilet paper shortage in the 70's.

Nancy Rossman takes a ride in a Hot Trans Am.

Debbie Mellon now realizes how worthless those piano lessons were.

E. Beall knows all those ballet lessons paid off.

Kathy Kaney is having another fight with one of her boyfriends

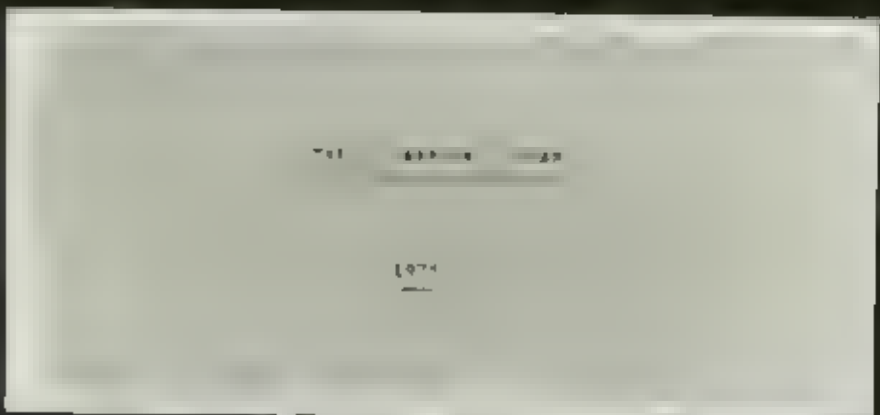

Can you guess who's behind this costume?

At the beach flew the frisbee, homes had waterbeds,
And streaming down the road went Jeeps, Trans Ams and mopeds.
Some of us practiced Dance and piano
So We could play later with clackers or yo yos.
In '71 Mickey arrived with all Disney's fun,
Then Sea and Circus Worlds came into the sun.

How many "no's" did you receive in the literary test?

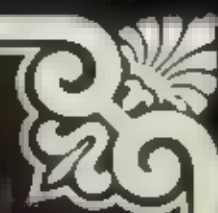

The Parrish Plan was a new experience in '75-'76.

Eagles were District Ball State Champs in 1975.

In '74 the Parrish Plan caught classes up short,
 '75 saw Eagles State Champs on the court.
 Then came the quiz plan for all to see,
 '77 brought juniors a test for literacy.
 Remember granny glasses, hot pants and the mini skirt?
 Now girls wear gouchos, sundresses and novelty shirts.

Linda Mahr is displaying the goods.

Lisa France brightens up the day with a smile.

Orlando really stands out in Suite Hutchinson.

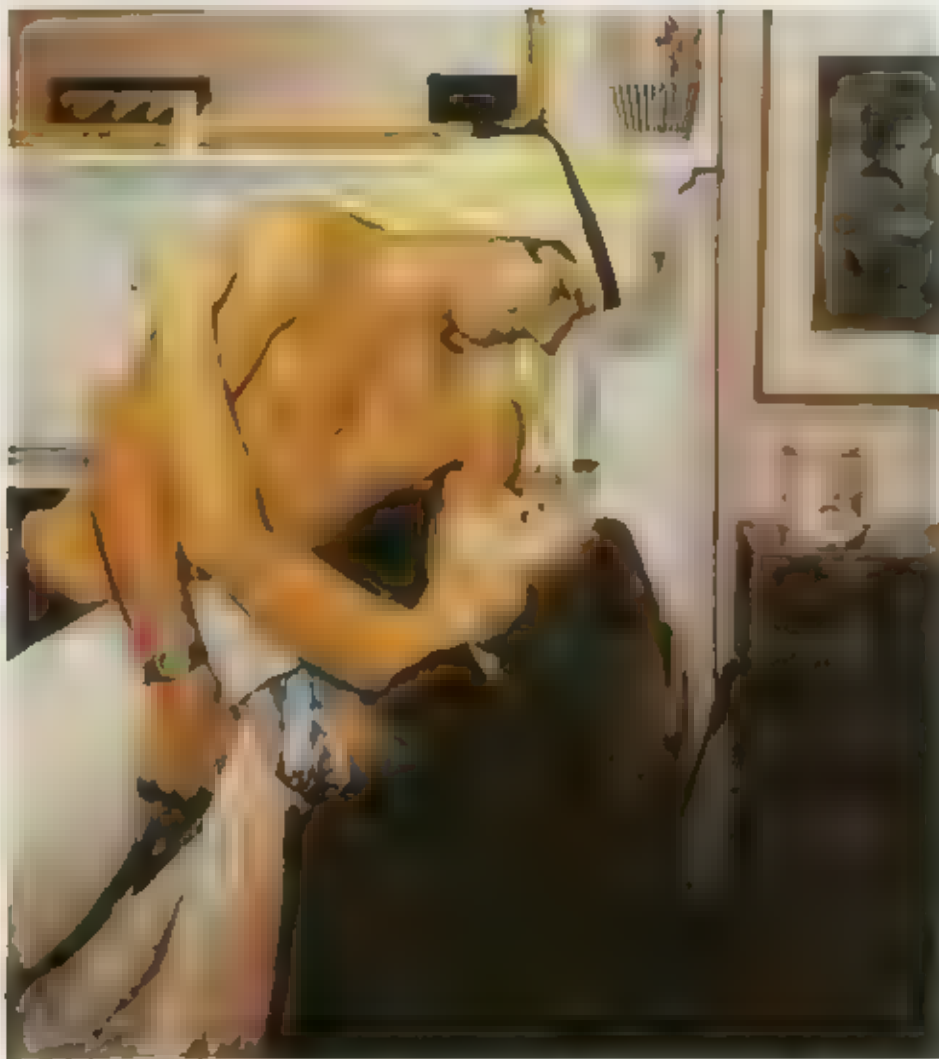

Mary Huang lets out her dogs.

With a name like Monique, her shirt just is a novelty.

Yearbook's Candid Camera staff team caught Craig Filixson and Laura Hellinger off guard

Shark bites M. Sieliedah, M. Mitche screams

Craig and Mary Ann try to push Mary in water

John Hellinger doesn't have the force for his battles as in the sword are dead

First officer Spock (Steve Oser) is writing recipes for the keebler elves

All three fail in!!

Later L. Hellinger was dunked, but the shark was caught

After school everyday we'd turn on TV,
 We'd never know what next we would see.
 Star Trek, Bewitched and Green Acres we'd see,
 And later All in the Family and Laverne and Shirley.
 My Three Sons, Partridge Family and Brady's family stuff
 Never left us, for now we have Eight is Enough.
 Kojak, Mannix and Mod Squad fought crime
 But later Starsky, Hutch and Charlie's Angels arrived in time.
 Herbie the Love Bug was once hero to us,
 But now we like movies when the hero can cuss.
 Some flicks were Grease, Star Wars and Valentino.
 Most exotic was the Rocky Horror Picture Show.

Mike Montgomery & Chris Sanford play Starsky & Hutch in the halls

J. Blough, D. Hock and C. Wolfman play Charlie's Angels at lunch (you little devils, you)

L. Vigil and S. Easterling are just like Laverne & Shirley Even their initials are the same

We had America's birthday, Edgewater's too,
 And many had looked forward to Rock Superbowl II.
 While officials entered the Panama Canal debate,
 Others still dwelt on scandalous Watergate.
 In '77 the snow came drifting down,
 The next year brought Bob Carr Aud. downtown.

Municipal Auditorium 1977

Bob Carr Auditorium

It's Miss America! G. Channing honoring the Bicentennial.

The Panama Canal, which was debated over in 1978.

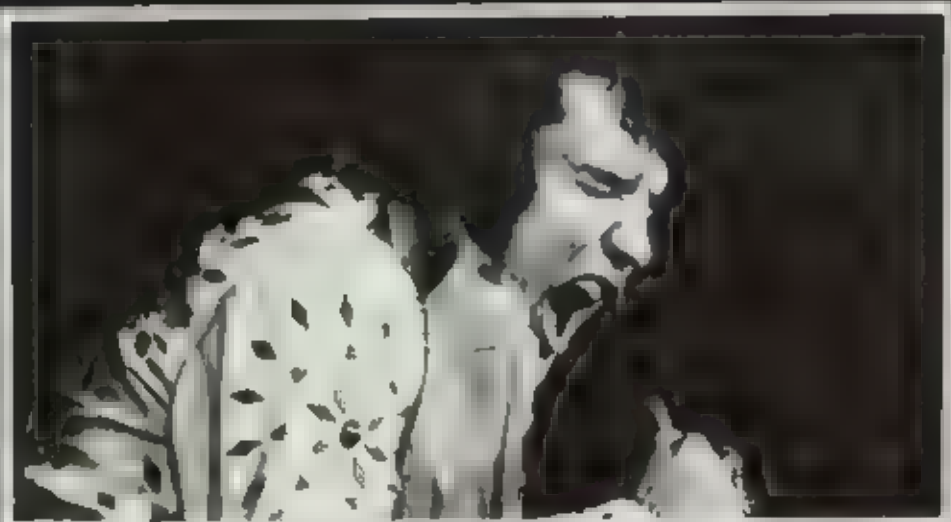

Mark Coker and Louisa Coker make a toast to Edgewood's 25th anniversary.

The scandalous Wootgate trial occurred in the 1970's.

The sad death of Elvie Peasey will always be remembered.

Dr. Whisman and P. Davis get shells from the river although it's 90° out.

As Manilow said, "Looks like we made it."
We did, and in our minds are memories unfaded.

Eagles Enjoy Successful Prom

The biggest night in most high school students' year is the Junior Prom. This night is worked up to by many hours of planning and preparing by both the excited participants and the dedicated Junior Class Council. Each couple has its own plans to make the night special. These may range from a dinner at her house and coordinating outfits to a walk on the beach and a breakfast party. But whatever the pre and post plans happen to be, Prom is always a magical success.

Even Mr. and Mrs. Hartle catch the romantic air of Prom.

Mr. Brown, Jim Dyer, Boo Binings and Ben MacEwan watch the balloons.

Emma Bradley doesn't seem to buy all of Robert Powell's sweet talk.
Katie French adds her personal touch to Tony Hood's boutonniere.

Annette Johnson, Brenda Turner, Teresa Tomlinson display T-shirts and big top

Eagles Step In Style

Bobbie socks, heels, dresses, skirts, and ties, were some of the fads going around in 1978. People were more and more into fashion, experimenting with new looks. Everyone wanted to look sharp and there always seemed to be something new and exciting on the market to catch our eye

America Loves Baseball, Hotdogs Apple Pie And Yearbooks

Appointments! Pictures! Deadlines! It's more than a hobby, more than your typical class period. This year's 1978-79 Odsaglah Staff started work over a year ago. With the cooperation and determination of one of the largest staffs in Edgewater's history, they captured the memorable moments of the 1978-79 school year. A yearbook is not just a pretty book filled with pictures and names. The Odsaglah is a result of many hours of hard work. In order to provide the students with visual memories, the staffers had to design layouts, schedule and crop pictures, as well as interview students to write copy. The funding for this was a direct result of many hours spent soliciting advertisements. Knowing the long hours and hard work that it takes to compile a yearbook, no staffer will ever look at a book without realizing its complexity.

Student Council Has A Successful Year

The voice of the school starts with the students" according to the Student Council President, Charlie Benson. The council attempted to involve as many students as possible in its various projects. Some of these included: The Sweet heart court and dance, parking lot maintenance, campus beautification, and all elections. Homecoming was once again the most important endeavor of the council, consisting of a court and dance. Student Council also sponsored the Salvation Army Christmas Drive for the needy of Orlando, a youth group for the March Of Dimes, and, for a little variety, a powder puff football game for the senior and junior girls.

They have not only learned, but have also taught us the things we take for granted that are not always available to others.

Eagles Have Talent In Chorus

When thinking about talent, singing is one of the first mentioned. That's exactly what we had here at Edgewater — singing talent. Chorus consisted of not only our ever busy Concert Chorus but also an Improving men's and women's chorus, the "Singing Eagles" and "Trebleaires" respectively. The Handbells, while they don't use the voice, are definitely a musical talent, becoming more popular each year. Finally, the voice class had an important part of the singing program, teaching voice control and singing techniques.

This schedule is only part of the full program Mr. Jarvis, along with Mrs. Reynolds, his aid, organized and coached this year. Others include the Barber Shop Quartet and the Contemporary. Chorus has truly become an exciting group and an asset to the proud Eagles of Edgewater High School.

Homework . . . The Serious Side Of Student Life

With the return of school days, homework, once again, became a major hurdle for every student. Heavy math assignments, numerous history questions and difficult English essays compelled many to seek easier ways to study. Students usually found that with a little creativity and a relaxed atmosphere they could study and still enjoy themselves. Some methods include: discussing biology over the telephone, contemplating algebra in front of the television or deciphering chemistry equations during lunch.

Majorettes Sparkle With Talent

The pride and spirit of Edgewater was exemplified by five talented majorettes. With their skill and talent they dazzled even the most unresponsive crowd. They spent countless hours of spare time perfecting their routines. "I feel that the majorettes added that certain sparkle to each half time show," stated Dawn Serra. This special entertainment enjoyed by all, made their endeavor worthwhile.

Varsity Cheerleaders Cheer Eagles On

At any game Edgewater participated in, one could always find cheerleaders pumping out the spirit in everyone, and giving the players motivation. The cheerleading squad consisted of fourteen girls led by Sharon Wilkins and Tracy Baetzman (captain and co-captain). Also, the cheerleaders were under the direction of Ms. Martinson. This year, the cheerleaders really had something to yell about; for Edgewater was tops in the Metro. At every dynamic game, the cheerleaders were always present cheering the Eagles on to victory.

J.V. Cheerleaders On The Move

Two bits, four bits      Everyone at Edgewater knows the meaning of spirit and that spirit and cheerleaders naturally go together. But what is not so well known is all the time and energy that goes into cheerleading. The 1978-79 J.V. cheerleaders went to camp during the summer where they earned a superior ribbon. They sold doughnuts and pamphlets at the varsity games, and planned some projects to aid the American Cancer Society. When Lisa Albin was asked why she wanted to be a cheerleader considering the long hours of practice and activities along with the regular games she said simply, "I just wanted to help promote spirit."

Homecoming Reflects Eagle Pride

Although the 1978-79 Homecoming parade which was scheduled to be held on October 19th was cancelled due to rain, the Eagles' spirit and pride were not dampened. Students who went to the memorable 1978 Homecoming game thoroughly enjoyed the half-time activities. The candidates were driven around the field in open convertibles and later participated in the traditional Homecoming half-time ceremony which was highlighted by the King, Joey McDade escorting the new queen Laura Hellinger across the field to be crowned. The 1978 Homecoming dance had record numbers attend. The dancers were expertly entertained by the band Society. This Homecoming, as always reflected the pride and spirit Eagles hold for Edgewater. It also reflected the great enjoyment students get from participating in school activity

Edgewater Follows Boone Week Traditions

The twenty-six-year old rivalry between Boone and Edgewater was again apparent as Boone Week started with Tuesday's shade day. All students showed their spirit by displaying their shades. Wednesday was hat day, where students created the craziest hat possible to spirit up the school. On jersey day students wore jerseys to inspire the football team and to let them know that the Eagles were behind them all the way. Thursday was topped off by the best bonfire ever. Students and clubs donated wood but most was some that Boone had left lying around. The eagles really showed spirit Friday by keeping quiet for silent day and anyone daring to speak a word was marked "T" for traitor. The J.V. cheerleaders dressed up as Boone Braves and members of the Senior Class captured the War Chief himself and tied him to the totem pole. A few braves came over to raise their flag, but come time for the pep rally, the flag was ripped to pieces by rowdy seniors! The Eagles took Boone that night and proved as Loretta Vigil said, "Look out Boone, The Mighty Eagles STILL Rule."

Students Gain Experience From Jobs

Many of the students at Edgewater held jobs while attending school. Some were involved with the school work program, others held part-times after school and/or week-ends. Some of the jobs included working at Walt Disney World, Central Florida Blood Bank, Burger King, Goodings, Montgomery Wards, and Once Upon a Stage. These were only a few of the jobs held by students at Edgewater. Some of the jobs took a lot of time and skills others were merely just for fun

The 1979 Miss EHS Contest proved very rewarding for the girls who entered. Leigh Schnabel was crowned Miss EHS, and her runners-up were Sharon Clayton in second place and Donna Webb in first place. Leigh is a model for Camelot Talent Agency. Looking into the future, she plans to go to New York and work for Lord and Taylor. Some of Leigh's hobbies include modeling and playing the piano. When asked her reaction to being announced Miss EHS she said, "I really had no idea that I would be named Miss EHS." Leigh performed a number by Ruben in minor, and when interviewed about her future, she replied "I would like to carry on my plans of modeling."

Eagles Soar Far And Wide

Barbara Hurst pauses for a moment in front of Windsor Castle during her trip to London.

How would you like to earn college credit while on summer vacation? A group of students did just that when they went on the Pacific American Institute tour of Europe last summer. Their trip began in England, continued through France, Austria, Italy, and finally ended in Spain. The students who partook of this opportunity participated in seeing the changing of the guard at Windsor Castle, staying at a convent during their stay in Rome, and some of them actually got a chance to fight a bull in Madrid, Spain. Students from EHS included Liz Brown, Lois Wolff, Robin Winkler, Liz Cox, Leslie Russell, Kathy Kaney, Sue Reltz and Barbara Hurst, accompanied by Mrs. Duncan. Another Eagle who left the U.S. that summer was Randy Willard. He worked his way to France, where he remained visiting friends for one month. During his stay, Randy visited many famous chateaus and French cathedrals which are noted for their architectural design. Randy explained that he especially enjoyed his trip because he had a chance to take pictures of some of the most beautiful countrysides in the world. The students who went abroad agreed that they would like to return to more countries to further their unique experiences.

Students Show Talent Through Hobbies

Many students have shown talent through their hobbies. Some students use their hobbies as a release of tension, others for competition, or some had hobbies for fun. "To me, a talent is something you enjoy doing. You do it so much that it becomes talent," says Junior Ginny Davies. Students here at EHS had many varieties of hobbies, such as skateboarding, drama, polevaulting, dancing, and karate. Plus many, many, more!

Animals Give Companionship

During moments when students were alone they found companionship with their pets. Ranging from hamsters to horses and squirrels to birds, EHS students' pets came in various shapes and sizes. Whether it be quiet or bouncy and loud the personality of a pet often reflects the personality of its owner. The inquisitive, noisy squirrel may satisfy the needs of one personality yet the smooth stillness of a cat may be just right for another. Pets can be your closest friends, they make few demands, yet they share their love willingly.

Eagles Enjoy Improvements

Just as years gone by, changes have occurred at Edgewater's campus. In the improvement department was the student parking lot. The area was refurbished this summer and greeted the students to start the year off right. In the re-design department, the guidance department made the headlines. It was improved with a coat of paint and some paneling. The Junior-Sophomore cafeteria was in the news as the recently painted department. The bigger-than-life paintings improved at least the looks of the cafeteria. Not many students even knew that Edgewater had a greenhouse; however, this year it won first prize in the oldy, but goody, department. Finally, in the addition department, the Army donated a 10 foot high schedule of the 'fighting Eagle' football team. The list, located in the 100 Hall, proved to be good luck as the Eagles won every game (except the mis-spelled Gainseville). Maybe the schedule should become a tradition at Edgewater.

Principals Plan, Ensure Improvement

The school administration was very much involved in the long range planning of goals and objectives. EHS wanted to insure the future of students by providing a good education and participation in the school system. An in-depth study of the discipline codes helped to improve the education and made the school more comfortable for the students. Continued improvements will help add to the quality of EHS

Library Presents New Ideas

More and more students used the media center during the 1978-79 school year. Perhaps the key to their success was that the trained media specialists were able to answer almost any question they had. They were also able to provide expert guidance in use of the excellent media center facilities and materials. The media center expanded into the classrooms with presentations to help students help themselves through a better knowledge of research techniques

Math Adds Up

To help sophomores review for the basic skills section of the Florida State Assessment Test, four classes were added. Sophomores entering in 1978 were told they would be required to take two years of math rather than one. The courses offered at Edgewater ranged from Pre-Algebra to Calculus. Other additions to the department were four programmable calculators and two computers to help with the attendance records. Mr. Brewer, head of the Math Department, hoped that two more printer computers would eventually be added.

Art Enriches Students

The art department had a very exciting year. Works of EHS students were exhibited at the Maitland Art Center. Several of these works received honorable mentions. Art students also participated in the Winter Park Art Show and the College Park Sidewalk Art Festival. Students were encouraged to enter local and national competition such as the Scholastic Art Awards and the annual year-book Creative Arts Awards. The art department continued the tradition of having an annual Spring Exhibit. Edgewater students were encouraged to express their talents in all these activities.

Edgewater's reading program was designed to develop students' reading skills in the areas of comprehension, speed and vocabulary. The students were taught how to skim and scan materials to pick up important details. The reading laboratories, equipped with the latest materials and machines, afforded each student opportunities to learn the fundamentals as well as the enjoyment of reading.

Science Flies To New Heights

The science department added a new course this year — aviation, (the science of flying airplanes), taught by Mr. Bernard Wojtaszek. Throughout the year the students received instruction which prepared them to take a test at the end of the year, leading to an FAA pilot's license. For the first time this year, Mr. Larry Bagwell taught a semester course in Physics. Mr. Robert Smith, who taught Biology, Ecology, and Chemistry this year, brought his 11-foot python to school.

Business is a Learning Experience

This year's business department consisted of many subject areas. Record keeping, accounting and CBE (Cooperative Business Education) were available to the students. There were two computers brought into the business department at the beginning of the 1978-79 school year the Magna I and the IBM word processor. The more advanced of the two is the word processor. Its main function is to save time by duplicating the typed copy. The typed sheet is self corrected and then retyped onto another sheet of paper. The copy can be stored in the computer for later references.

(Distributive Education), one of the programs, had 80 participants. Students were taught how to go for job interviews, how to act properly, and how to get along in the business world. Mr. Fred Reed and Mr. Bob Giannone conducted D.E. Mr. Fred Townsend also helped students to obtain jobs in the Work Experience program. Amid the clang of wrenches against metal and the rumbling of engines, students involved in the Auto Mechanics classes learned how to repair everything from cars to lawn mowers. The students worked on their own cars and on some school equipment. When asked why she took Auto Mechanics, Kelly Keating (who was one of the two girls in the course) said, "I want to learn how to fix my own car so I don't get ripped off. Also, so that when I'm driving I can help somebody on the side of the road!" All the students in the Auto Mechanics program learned skills which would be very useful to them in the future.

Students Develop Necessary Skills

This was the third year that Edgewater had the Exceptional Education Department. The faculty members working in this field are Mrs. Elizabeth Farmer and Mrs. Jacqueline Bailey in the Educable Mentally Handicapped (EMH) Department, and Mrs. Pat Rawls in the Specific Learning Disability (SLD) Department. EMH and SLD aimed to teach the students the basic skills needed to continue on after high school. Students worked from textbooks, workbooks and had classroom discussions. Some classes had the opportunity to do on the job training. In this program the students were taught on an individual basis for four periods a day and in the afternoon they worked.

Edgewater's physical education program tried to develop the students' coordination and skills. The students did everything from ping pong to football. The co-educational system again worked out very well in that more students seemed to be participating. More emphasis was placed on preparing the students for lifelong athletics. Student Nimi Riley stated that "P.E. periods at EHS are very enjoyable; especially when we play basketball."

Mrs. Houston, secretary to the principal, made Mr. Rohrer's appointments, sorted mail, and made the payroll. Mrs. Peach, the treasurer, made sure the seniors had all their dues paid before graduation and took care of all the other school finances. Mrs. Billings assisted Mr. Cinnamon in changing students' schedules. In the guidance office, Mrs. Gartman and Mrs. DeVore worked hard to help meet the students' and counselors' needs. Students who couldn't seem to get to school on time reported to Mrs. Hilton in the Attendance Office. Without the efforts of the secretaries, the machinery of Edgewater would grind to a halt.

In the Navy, a job means more than just a good paycheck.

It means the adventure of seeing places like Greece, Spain, Hawaii and Hong Kong. It means becoming an expert on exciting technical equipment in our submarines, on our jets and in our ships. It means doing a job that really counts with people who count on you to do it.

The Navy can give you training in more than 60 career fields. Talk it over with your Navy recruiter. He'll be able to tell you what you can qualify for in the Navy.

What was your favorite sophomore prank?

It took place in Mrs. Brook's first period Spanish class. Enid Marvel and I pretended that Enid was wearing contacts and she was having a lot of trouble putting the contacts in. She dropped the make believe contact on the carpet — mind you the contact was tinted the same as the rug. We had the whole class looking for the contact, we even got to miss a test for it. After the bell rang Enid and I stayed after class and still looked for the contact, while Mrs. Brooks kept the second period class outside. We finally gave up and went to our second period class. — Karen Heller

My favorite prank was when another student put 2 pig eyes into an old Biology book and told me to give it to Ms. Trtilek. — Denise Howard

Strength Of Aides Bolsters Their Team

Coach Shadow gave the Soccer-aides more authority and respect for their positions. They spent a lot of time out on the fields helping the team to all their great victories. Their main fund-raisers were car washes from which they got money for the team uniforms as well as their own.

Spring Squash; Latin Club?

Although stuffing VW's with as many people as possible isn't everyone's idea of having fun, Latin Club took on the challenge anyway. In the spring, any club that wishes to enter the VW squash, may do so. All you have to do is have a VW, some willing victims and some strong people to help push it to the finish line. Latin Club's major fund raising project was again selling carnations on Valentine's Day. They also rounded up buses for the Eau Gallie football game and sponsored the door decorating contest at Christmas. But what did they do with all these funds? Pizza Parties seemed to be the favorite among the Latin Club members

To Promote Spirit Is Real Fun

Car washes, candy sales, and Eagle T-shirts were only a few campaigns Pep Club sponsored to promote school spirit. They worked hard on the Homecoming Parade and their efforts were still appreciated even though it rained. With the help of Key Club, Pep Club made the bonfire a success. It had the biggest turnout in Edgewater's history and boosted spirit which won the football game. As Bill Wolff, the president said, "Pep Club shows the real spirit of Edgewater."

EHS Students Get "Keyed" Up

Ties? Jackets? 3x5 cards? Singing at lunch? What does this all mean? Only one thing — Key Club Pledge Week, of course! For one week before the Oak Ridge football game Key Club pledges wore their ties, jackets, 3x5 cards to indicate their being pledges, and completed numerous projects to show their interest in the club. After that traumatic week, the next week climaxed with the roast, and the new members were named the next day. Key Clubbers worked diligently to improve the school's appearance by painting, cleaning, and general repairs of the school grounds. But Key Club was not all work. Members enjoyed many parties, and looked forward to the highlight of the year — the District Convention in Orlando, where Key Clubbers from all over Florida meet to elect new District officers. All in all, Key Club was one of Edgewater's most active clubs as they worked towards their motto — "Respond to Society's Needs."

Campus Life, Christian Life

Campus Life is a Christian organization designed to tell others about Jesus Christ. Students from Edgewater and Apopka High Schools met once a week to share feelings, testimonies and the love of the Lord. There was a lot of serious Bible study and prayer. The club had various programs to help others, such as, Project EDGE, (Edgewater Deserves Gospel Entirety). Along with this, there was also a lot of crazy fun, including a party with the longest banana split ever! And guess who showed up at Campus Life's Halloween Costume Party, Darth Vader himself! ## Double Team, Double Talk

Two of the most active clubs in school were Tri H Y and Hi Y. These service clubs had regular projects for the community, YMCA and school. The clubs were liaisoned with the central branch of the YMCA. Bob Johnson, who was the counselor for the clubs from the YMCA, gave suggestions for some of the projects the clubs undertook. Some of those projects were collecting and distributing canned goods throughout the community, visiting patients in hospitals, and cleaning up the YMCA building. Their special project was caring for their "adopted grandmother", Mrs. Stevens, who is crippled and has no family. The president of the club, Merry Jane Urban, said "meeting people and getting involved is what these clubs are all about."

Presenting . . . "Comedy Tonight"

Opening nights, work parties, make-up, lights, special friendships, cast parties. What is it all about? Comedy Tonight is what! A series of three one act plays were presented this year by the Thespians and Players. The one acts included "Opening Night", "The Diary of Adam and Eve", and "Curse You, Jack Dalton!". Where the Lilies Bloom was the spring production presented in February. Edgewater Players are those persons working toward Thespian membership. The International Thespian Society is a lifetime honor society. The word "Thespian" originates from the Greek poet, dancer, and theatrical manager, Thespis. An actor or actress must work a minimum of one hundred hours and meet several other requirements to be eligible for membership. It is a very special organization because it continues beyond the years of high school, and with it continues the memories of opening nights, make-up, cast parties

The Artistic Eagles Take Flight

The Artistic Eagles took flight early in the year by setting up a display at the Mariand Civic Center to start the ball rolling. This was only an insignificant part compared to their biggest goal, which was the Tampa Scholastic Art Show. There were plenty displays shown during the year, besides displaying their creatives in the student Art Gallery. The Art Club felt their main goal was to promote school spirit artistically as well as mentally. Stated Vice-President Clint Nolle, "I felt like I was helping to create a sense of responsibility for everyone to take part in their school. If everyone would participate in any area they felt they could contribute the most to, Edgewater could be #1 educationally as well as spiritually." With that in mind the Artistic Eagles planned in the future to show other schools there is more going for Edgewater than athletics.

Business: The Way Of The World

The Future Business Leaders of America Club has really given me a chance to pursue the career of my choice," stated the President, Vicki Stano. That statement summed up the feelings of most club members. FBLA members felt their club had more to offer in the line of business than most, because towards the end of the year they competed for trophies in the business field in which they were most prominent. Mrs Gruber and Mrs Wishau agreed that the purpose of FBLA/CBE was to develop competent aggressive business leadership, plus to improve their home and community. FBLA/CBE with Mrs. Gruber, and FBLA with Mrs Wishau combined their talents on a voluntary basis to raise the money they needed for their Employer/Employee Banquet by washing cars, selling candy and having several paper and can drives. They believed they accomplished their task by learning to make the Business World more profitable for them in the future

Students Gain Office Skills

The Future Secretaries Association program enabled secretaries to play a more positive and active role in professional development, which included the encouragement of qualified students to enter the secretarial profession. Members got the chance to develop a recognition of the importance of desirable work habits, attitudes, and responsibility while they also gained a better understanding of the business world through association with experienced secretaries. The club participated in seminars with other schools, and at the end of the year sponsored a seminar for EHS. Future Secretaries was a way for people to get to know themselves in relation to the business world.

Athletes Become One, Share Lasting Goals

Being involved was what FCA was all about. Car washes and a trip to Wet-n-Wild were the activities this club provided. Their philodendron and Eagle jacket sales were also a great success in making FCA recognizable. To become a Fellowship and the opportunity to share Christ with others were their goals at Edgewater. Members of this club sought to develop their communication skills through group discussions at meetings, which turned out to be an enjoyable experience. As a member said, "FCA is A - O - K!"

Junior Civitan Says "Yes, We Can!"

Junior Civitan is a community service club that tries to help by contributing what they can. The 1978-79 club reached 27 girl members with 3 big brothers, who when possible helped with the projects. Several of their contributions included sponsoring the Miss EHS Pageant, bake sales, car washes, candy sales, and cleaning up the Tangerine Bowl after a home game. All these projects proved Jr. Civitan can!

Work Experience: Earn While You Learn

Being a student and working at the same time takes discipline. Work Experience students were able to learn in the classroom, methods dealing with the business world as well as earning money. In school, attendance is a must for any student's success. This was equally important on a job. The Work Experience program gave students an opportunity to set a goal and to work together to fulfill that goal.

Suelto la Lengua!

To be in the Spanish Honor Society, you must have at least two years of Spanish with a "B" average or better and must continue with Spanish to hold an office. Sound too tough? Well, you would find out that once you are in it, the work was worth it. After meeting the requirements, you would be invited to join the club. The induction ceremony at the Primera Iglesia Bautista was a moment to remember including songs and literature in Spanish and finally the tapping into the national organization El Capitulo El Greco de la Sociedad Honoraria Hispanica, which is the official name of the EHS chapter of Spanish Honor Society, held car washes and bake sales, and also had parties with pinatas and Spanish food. Spanish Honor Society was a fun and also interesting way to expand your understanding of the spanish language and culture. Suelto la lengua! Loosen your tongue and speak Spanish!

A.F.S. Work Is Never Done

The American Field Service club was created at Edgewater in 1962. Its purpose was to provide monetary support to bring foreign students to America. Once they are here we help to expose them to American culture. A.F.S. thrives on leadership and human relations combined to create an atmosphere of fun and enjoyment. Their activities started off with a welcoming party for the foreign exchange student, and went on to include Halloween, Thanksgiving and Christmas parties. They ended their season with an A.F.S. assembly which provided the student body with information on the cultures of different countries. This was the end of their season, but not the end of their work, for it all started over at the end of the year, to prepare for the new A.F.S. student

Trink Trink Brüderlein Trink!

What is it that flies throughs the air at the speed of sound? It's     It's     yes, it's a gummi bear! German Club was responsible for the fun you had hitting people in the face with the delicious bears. In addition to the work of selling candy, members had a lot of fun, especially at their annual Oktoberfest. This dinner party sent the whole club to different houses for the various courses of the meal. And in the German Club tradition, had many parties. So if you are learning German, like German food and parties, then German Club was the club for you!

Eagles Busy, Creative

This year's Future Homemakers and Needlecraft clubs were busy. FHA held bakesales, carwashes, and planted flowers for FHA week. In April they attended the State Convention and several District Meetings. Needlecraft Club had many activity meetings. Together the clubs proved that Edgewater students are both determined and skillful.

Cheeses, wines, and beautiful France. Edgewater's French club took a journey into the exciting world of the French. No, it wasn't Paris, it was the French Market in downtown Orlando. ## Chess Team Knows The Moves

The room was silent. The knight was motionless. The King and Queen, their pawns surrounding them, huddled in their places while the rooks and bishops contemplated the overthrow of their opponent's kingdom. Suddenly a voice ripped the air. "Check Mate!" Brad Salz, first board member, had just won another strategic game of chess. Edgewater's Chess Club had a season of 7-3. The club consisted of five members who were ranked according to how well they played. Mrs. Johns, the sponsor, is a member of the Orlando Chess Club where she plays several times a week. She was responsible for keeping the room quiet and making sure the players played by the rules.

DECA Means Projects That Pay

Don't work?? Did somebody say we don't work? Somebody has a terrible misconception!" DECA (Distributive Education Clubs of America) stayed busy since August 28, 1978. Selling Calendars was the first of their assignments; after that came cheese, sausage and Christmas coloring books. While all this out of class work kept them busy, class time work kept them on their toes. Interviewing people, research and typing till their fingers fell off were involved in the production of their manuals. Finance and Credit, Food Marketing and General Merchandise were a few of the different areas from which the members of DECA were able to choose. After their manuals were complete they began working on laps on the same areas. They were tested on these at Valencia Community College. Of course it's impossible to forget the Muscular Dystrophy drive they held January 29 through February 2. The members sold advance tickets Monday through Wednesday and sold popcorn on Thursday and Friday.

Society Members Use Their Brains

If you were new to EHS this year, you might have found National Honor Society helpful in finding your way around the campus as they offered their services by means of "Ask Me" tags. As the year went along, Honor Society was busy with a car wash, and their successful tutoring service which helped those students who needed tutoring before or after school. In addition to cleaning up the T-Bowl and helping Mrs. Bailey in the special education reading lab, they had a Sunday afternoon picnic and football game and became involved with the District Honor Society by participating in meetings and in their brain bowl team. National Honor Society tapped new and old members in the spring, and the new and old members worked together in all their activities.

Eagle Baseball Swings Into Play

The 1978-79 eagle baseball team was loaded with talent. Experience was not a problem with the team consisting of returning letter men Mark Deglomine, Craig Ellixson, Joe Mareci, Greg Dogget, David Carter, Brian Farmer and Mark Cotter. Through the leadership of Coach Tommy Thompson the team was prepared with many hours of practice each day after school. Coach Wojtaszek assisted Coach Thompson to bring about a successful season.

Girls' Softball Is Hit

The girls' softball team was prepared mentally as well as physically for the '79 season. The team consisted largely of juniors and seniors. Returning players were Denise Howard and three year veterans Vickie Stano, Diane Meldrum, Kere Rowell, Terri Walls, and '78's most valuable player Vickie Forte. The team worked very well together especially on defense. Practice lasted an average of 2 hours a day with batting, fielding, and working on fundamentals. Coach Cooper remarked, "If we improve our hitting we should improve over last year's record."

Golf Team Has "Excellent Depth"

High hopes for the Golf team were led by Bruce Steen, Scott Little, David Ragan, Billy Hussey, Chris Johnson, and Jimmy Olsen. This team was together for the past three years and knew how to play their game. Coach Bob Doice said of his team, "We have a winning team and are looking for a winning season." Bruce Steen felt that the Golf team was, "a strong team, with excellent depth. When we get it going we'll be tough to beat." Scott Little and Bill "Hus" Hussey agreed that golf is a sport that combines mental awareness and talent. The optimism for the team was based on their experience.

Row, Row Row Your Boat

All eight sit ready, no slides, finish position, ready all row!!" This is just one familiar sentence you hear everyday at a crew team practice. The team worked out daily from January to May. Many believe that you just get in a boat and paddle around, this is totally untrue. You must be in top physical shape, and to achieve this you must exercise. Practice consisted of running two or more miles, doing exercises such as situps, pushups, leglifts and then actually getting on the water and rowing. It takes hard work and dedication to become a number one team. In the '77-'78 season all of the hard work paid off when the Eagle crew captured the over all state championship crown. Georgett Chastang thought that this year again would be good because they had twelve returning oarswomen. Steve Wigle stated "Crew's great, the only requirements are that you love to win and you love pain."

Tennis Players Get Net Results

Edgewater had two very fine tennis teams this year. Due to the devotion of Coach Cook and Coach Lentz both teams had successful seasons and finished well in the Metro Tennis Tournament. The players spent many long hours practicing on the courts which payed off when it came to playing their matches. The successful season was also attributed to returning players Nancy Blumen, Robin Drucker, Steve Goonen, Maxine Hunter, and Cabot Jaffee. The returning girls were all juniors, so an excellent experienced team can be expected next year.

Eagles Progress Stroke by Stroke

Swimming is considered by many as a sport which takes total dedication and plain old-fashioned guts. That is 100% right. It's a sport which takes someone that is experienced in the sport of swimming and has a firm guiding hand. Coach Bias had many years of experience in coaching and had the full back-up of Mrs. Rawls and Mrs. Carey, who devoted a lot of their time to coaching the Eagles team. The Eagle team had the depth that it needed and the experience that it had formed from extensive stroke work and lengthy practices. The girls' team was led by captain Julie Blough and senior Dana Dufka, who returned for their third year, Denise Gardiner and Dianne Clark, two juniors potential of being the backbone of the girls' team. A sophomore addition to the Eagle swim-team was Julie Jones, who proved that she could handle the load. The guys' team kept on grinding out the practices with experienced swimmers such as Bruce Arnold, Tom Mulligan, Alan Pickett, and Eric Redding. "The team is bigger and more experienced than years before. I am expecting a very good year even though we have problems hampering us including sickness, early working hours, and even regular school obligations," explained Coach Bias. Overall the team had the important spices to make the taste of victory a little more sweet.

Eagle Tracksters Run In Front

Like all of the Edgewater sports teams of 1979, the Eagle Track team came out on top. Competing with many of the finest teams in the state, the Eagles held their ground. The great success of the team was attributed to hard work, depth, and an abundance of individual talent. Leading the squad were several seniors and juniors who in the preceding two years were the Sophomore Metro Champions. Although the entire team was strong, the outstanding individuals were: sprinter/hurdler Jeff Dixon; sprinter/long-jumper Mark Freeman; pole vaulter Todd Postlmayr; weightman Marv Porter; distance runners Vic Serros, John Endicott, Steve Cherry, and Kerry Seal, and sprinters Don Williams, Ted Thomas, James Hardy, Myron Bryant, and Vincent Long.

Eagle Grapplers, Improve With Age

Two years ago, an Eagle wrestler stated he was like a good wine that improves with age. The 1978-1979 Eagle Grapplers are the product of the vine. Coach Jim Brown said, "this year's team has been the best team that he has ever coached. It had balance, desire, individuality, togetherness, pride and determination." The lack of experience though left the Grapplers to a 8-6-0 record.

J.V. Cagers Net Good Season

The Junior Varsity Basketball team had a very successful season in which they entered the Metro Conference Junior Varsity Championship. The team was led by the scoring of Emanuel Gordon, the playmaking and overall hustle of Leon Wright and the strong inside play of Linzey Smith. Starters Todd King and Gordon Seagrams contributed strongly with their wellrounded games. Sparking the team off the bench was Pat Lowry, James Houston, and Frankie Wheeler, all of whom improved immensely through the season. Also contributing to the effectiveness of the team were sharp-shooting Jimmy Haber and Junior Eugene Marsh. The J.V. Cagers attributed their fine season to the expert coaching of Mr. Edwards.

Eagle Cagers Jump Into Action

The 1978-79 Eagle cagers knew they had a tough reputation to uphold and they defended it to the best of their ability. Basketball is one sport which takes a lifetime of preparing yourself with the dynamics of the game and a coach to tie all the players together to make the team as strong as possible. With the skilled guidance of Head Coach Rudy Tapia who prepared his team through many hours of practice for the '78-'79 season, the eaglecagers started off the season (in the Sentinel Star tournament) with a big third place out of the best in the state. The cagers had a rough time in the beginning, losing a few games by only one or two points. But the cagers when brought to the peak of their ability came through, beating Winter Park High School 69-54. The eagle cagers kept this winning streak up with a big win over Boone High and destroyed Jones High

Eagles Soar On The Courts

The 1978-79 eagle cagers were lead by Captains Alfred Blue (who scored the most points for '77-78), Theo McWhite (who had the most assists), and Terence Stanley (who had the most recoveries). These three young men were returning lettermen along with Fred Bradley, Tommy Gnyard and Richard Moore. Larry Bar and Rick Worre were hard working seniors who were joined by juniors Wayne Clark, Sam Hill, Daryl Lewis, Todd King and Mike Jacobs to form the varsity team. These gentlemen worked very hard everyday of the season and then some.

Lady Eagles Shoot The Hoop

The girls started the season with many achievements. "I feel confident that this year's team has all the qualities needed for a championship team and a strong desire to go to the top. With a lot of breaks we could make it to the top," said Coach McCarty. Seniors returning this season were Tammi McCall and Velita Rollerson. Also from varsity were juniors Lawanna Gelzer and Debra Dyer. Moving up this year from J V. were juniors Kim Atkins, Jackie Stanley, Terri Freeman and Denise Howard. Sophomores Dennie Ware, Veronica Moore, Janice Williams and Nimi Riley also joined varsity this year. The girls competed in the Lady Hawk Invitational Tournament and came out winners

J.V. Soccer Dominates

Following in the footsteps of the more experienced varsity squad, the Junior Varsity Soccer team of 1979 completed the season with a very impressive win-loss record. The squad's two major assets were its depth and strong midfield play. Leading the team were strikers James Vigil and Eric Hires, halfbacks Terry Suliki and Mike McCoy, and fullbacks Nghiep Nguyen and Dell Motes. The only detriment to the J.V. team was the loss of several sophomores who were moved up to play varsity (although actually this was a good problem to have). As Coach Schadow stated, "Our good J.V. program this year will insure us another excellent varsity team next year."

Varsity Soccer Continues Success

Soccer at Edgewater combined both experience and flashy playmaking to the extent of forming its own unique style of play which was backed up by veterans Mike Montgomery, Mark Hinterthan, Jim Smith, and Chris Sanford. The offensive attack was vastly improved over previous years and the young man to credit with that was Hans Berggrund, by his contribution of great mid-field play. What made Coach Houston most proud and pleased for the future of Edgewater soccer was the performance of several sophomores. Most notable among them were "Spot" Jones, who was reminiscent of former All-American John Fernandez; Robert Smith, an outstanding striker; and Craig Salee, the stopper who might be termed the most outstanding full-back in the Metro Conference. "We are quite hopeful for another Metro and District Championship but last year's champion, Winter Park, and runner-up Evans, once again have powerful teams. Much depends on how fast our sophomores mature," declared Coach Houston.

J.V. Undergoes Challenging Season

The J.V. team has a lot of football potential and I hope the defeats that were suffered will help each man learn what mistakes have to be corrected and that you can still be a winner in the future," said Coach Bias. The determined J.V. Eagles came back after losses to Lake Howell and Lake Brantley to wipe away Jones 22 to 0. Although they came close to Boone and Evans, J.V. had a tough year. The offense was very aggressive and the defense kept a tight grip on its opponents. "This year the J.V. team, although having a losing record played strong defensive football," said Coach Wojtaszek

J.V. Football Keeps On Fighting

The J.V. Football team lead by Coach Wojtaszek had a difficult but rewarding season. Losing a majority of their games made it seem impossible to gain overall fame, but they learned many important and essential techniques that would benefit them in years to come. Hard practices in extreme heat made the J.V. squad tough and ready to play. Drills consisting of exercises, seatrolls, running backwards and offense against defense scrimmages contributed to the shaping of the squad. "Although this year's team met many frustrations, they will fill the gaps and become winners at the varsity level," said Coach Wojtaszek.

Eagles Clinch Metro Title

The grid action of the '78 season saw a strong Eagle Football team power its way to a number one position in the Metro. The Eagles were victorious in their first six games and then had an upsetting defeat to the Gainesville Hurricanes, who were ranked no 1 in the state. Thanks to the abilities of quarterback Theo McWhite the team finished the season with very promising statistics. Edgewater's fine coaching staff was also a major factor in the Eagles' successful season.

Eagles Advance To State Playoffs

Only one football team can truthfully say that they're #1, and in '78 that team was the Edgewater Eagles. The Eagles dominated the conference and district, defeating all other area teams, and then went on to the State playoffs. The regular season ended with 9 wins and only one loss against #1 ranked Gainesville, who out-scored the Eagles, but didn't out-play them. The offense was led by quarterback Theo McWhite and an abundance of quick runningbacks, while the defense was spearheaded by middle linebacker Clark Backus. These assets, along with exceptional overall team play and superior coaching proved to be the winning combination for the Eagle football team in '78.

Eagle Cross Country Takes First In Metro

The Edgewater Cross Country team, coming off a disappointing season last year, felt they had a lot to prove. "It was to be a rebuilding year, due to losses through graduation and others who were rezoned, but the team members decided it was not to turn out this way," stated Coach Benz. The team came back to school for the 1978 season better prepared than ever before. Steve Cherry, John Martinausky and Kerry Seal each achieved 1000 miles of jogging over the summer; several others came close. Although limited in quantity, the quality was far above average, as was the preparation. As a result the team consistently finished in the top 3 and won 3 runner-up trophies. The team was led by Captains John Endicott (who was All-Metro for 3 years) and Steve Cherry, Juniors Kerry Seal ('78 Metro Conference Champion), David Eunice, John Martinausky and Sophomores Theo Dawe and Jon McDade formed the nucleus of the varsity team with Senior Bill Turner and Junior Ronnie Bass also earning varsity letters. Returning J.V. runner Roger Plath was joined by newcomers Rick Wynn, Jim Lane and Doug Newlon

Volleyball Team Spikes Again

As expected, the 1978-79 volleyball team came on strong because many of their players returned from last year. Team Captains Leslie deZwart and Diana Meldrum led the team to a victorious 10-4 overall season, and a 9-3 metro season. The team placed 3rd in the metro due to the efforts of the 1st string players Debra Dyer, Hannah Barnes, Tammi McCall, Leticia Myrick, and the entire team.

And Remember Goodbye Doesn't Mean Forever

Mrs. Gibson, after teaching almost six years at Edgewater High School, has now retired from her chosen profession. She taught many different grade levels of English courses while at EHS. Among them were: Adv. Language and Composition; British literature; Adv. and average Composition Adv. and average Language. Mrs. Gibson was the type of teacher who expected great things from the students. She wanted to improve the standards to make Edgewater students the best. Other than the duties of teaching, Mrs. Gibson sponsored National Honor Society and would be asked to judge local and district speech contests. Mrs. Gibson is a remarkable lady in all that she has done, and, her past students have benefited greatly from her.

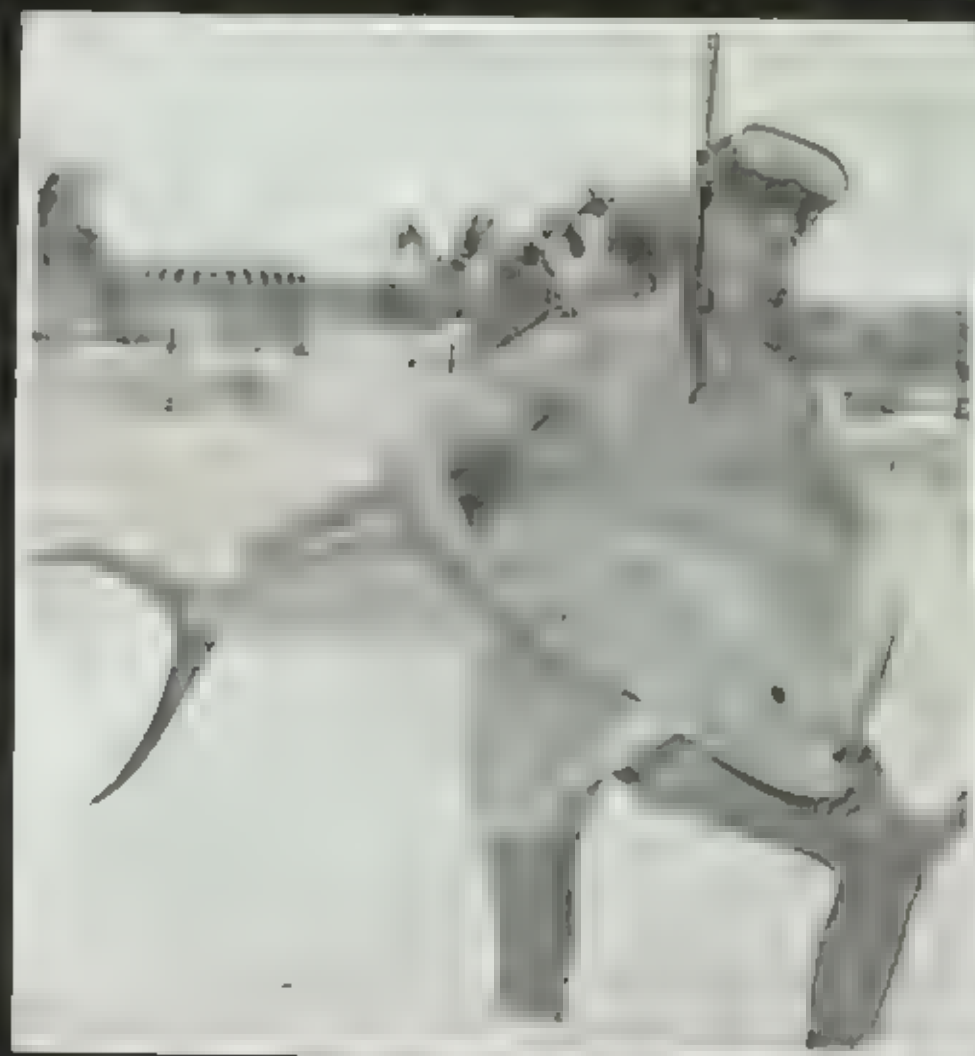

Philip Schwartz and Ellen Long enjoy their "Happy Days".

Ellen Long models recent styles of the 1970's.

Philip Schwartz shows us there is a Sea World right in his backyard.

The '70's were Happy Days; We have so much to remember,
Straight through the months January to December.
The '70's were years never to forget,
Events, fashions, movies, attractions and people we've met.

Denny Rasky would make a great Igor for Young Frankenstein!

Senator Humphrey was a most honorable man of the '70's.

Many events happened at Edgewater, many that were new,
 Eagles were champs in football and cross country too.
 However, all other sport teams should be congratulated,
 Also, this year's band which to the top they really made it.

Eagle Band made straight superiors this year

Edgewater's wrestling team came out number 3 this year

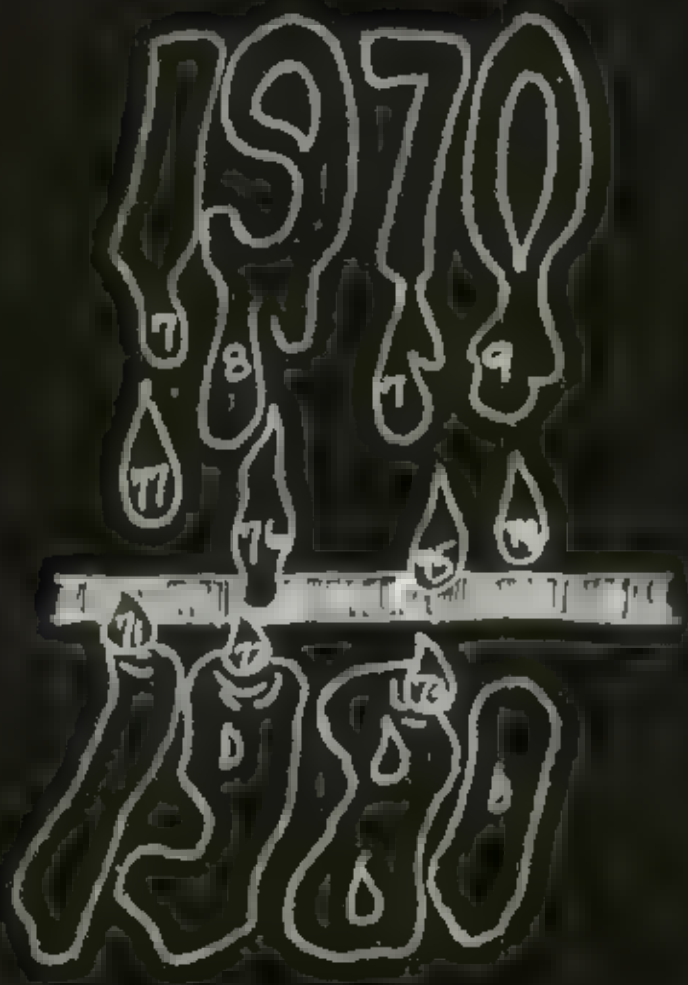

Stanley adds points on Eagle's side of the score board

Hans Berggrund dribbles the ball down the field using the Swedish touch

After the ball is kicked, it is only a matter of minutes before the Eagles score, leading Edgewater on to victory

Janet Clark and Linda Hall attempt to climb a fence.

Linda Hall succeeds.

Janet also made it. So did Mr. Terry. Girls, just keep on smiling while you can.

To another decade we shall jump the fence,
 For the '70's are nearing an end,
 Therefore, I shall switch to the future tense.
 What new things will the '80's bring, what will they mend?

Will science start to advance cloning?

What's a bunch of CLONERS? (C & C Cunningham, E & S Duane, D & S Smith, E & S Lee and C & S York)

1979 marks the last year of the '70's decade. The '70's are special in that they represent the years of our attendance at school, also, most of our memorable childhood years occurred during the '1970's. Therefore, I have tried to depict the '70's as this year's theme — in the opening and closing sections so that, in the future, when we pick up our yearbooks, wonderful memories of the '70's will reappear in our minds. I am very happy about this year's yearbook, but the book could have never been made without the help of Mrs. MacDonald and the yearbook staff, whom I'd like to thank very much. I would also like to thank the faculty and the student body of Edgewater for it takes all these people to produce a successful yearbook.

Race

The noon time blast of the firehouse siren announced the start of the town's annual bike race. The sun beat down with an intensity that would have sent even the sturdiest camel searching for relief from the sweltering heat. The air was thick and sticky, but the mayor's booming voice cut through it to the crowds of people. The bleachers were filled with people; men sleeping off effects of a late night at the town's pool hall, tired looking people with screaming babies on their laps, obese people of both genders greedily munching on hotdogs, and several of the town's most prominent gossips eagerly devouring yesterday's stale news. On the back row sat a black-eyed boy almost eight years old, who squinted into the sunlight and strained his neck, trying desperately to see

Kim noticed neither the heat nor the buzzing crowd. She was busy trying to pump up her deflated tire. She wore an expression of anxiousness and determination which suggested a greater maturity than her twelve years should have afforded her.

Suddenly a wave of nausea overcame her, and she sat down on the hard pavement with a thump. For a moment she sat down perfectly still, closing her eyes and concentrating. Then she opened them slowly and drew in a deep breath as her eyes lingered on the shiny ten-speed racer at which the mayor was gesturing. Her eyes hungrily took in its glossy chrome, its beautiful spokes which, unlike her bike, were untouched by rust. She could just see Mike's eyes widening when she presented him with that lovely bike. In her mind she saw him flying down the hill behind their house on the beautiful instrument, his shiny black hair flipped back by the wind, his face flushed and excited. The daydream dissolved abruptly as the mayor's voice bellowed, "And now what you've all been waiting for! The Annual Bike Race! Which lucky youngster will win this beeyootiful bike? We shall soon find out!" Kim hurriedly jumped up and got onto her bike, brushing the sand off her hands. The bike's back tire was still almost flat, but it would have to do.

"On your mark . . ." All the bikers had their hands on their handlebars and their eyes in front of them.

"Get set . . ." Jaws were clenched tight. Knuckles were white with strain. A hush spread through the crowd.

"GO!" And they were off. Kim's feet pedaled furiously and within a few seconds she was moving easily into the lead. All those hours of practice were finally paying off. One, two, three laps. She was halfway there. As she turned around the bend marking her third lap, she began to feel a pain creeping into her side. "Just relax and don't think about it," she counseled herself. "Think about something else. Think about Mike." Again, she envisioned her eight year old brother's face as he rode that shining ten-speed. Yes, that face would make all the practice, all the pain worthwhile. With a pang, she remembered the talk she'd had with her mother several months before.

"Mom," she'd said one evening as they were washing the dishes. "Is there a way we could get Mike a bike for his birthday? A new one, I mean." Kim's mother had sighed and looked at Kim, her eyes narrowing slightly, her forehead creased with concern. She looked tired and older somehow and it made Kim very sad. "Kim," she'd said slowly, almost as if she were trying to convince herself, "You know there's barely enough money as it is . . . We just can't afford such an expensive present."

Kim nodded silently. Yes, of course she knew that money was scarce. But a bike would mean so much to Mike! She'd seen the look of joy on Mike's face when his friend Tim had gotten a new bike, and she'd seen the look of hurt and disappointment when Tim had gone exploring with other friends who had bicycles. She would have given Mike her own bike, but its bad condition made it difficult to ride, too difficult for an eight year old.

Sadly, she'd finished the dishes, feeling an irrational anger at her mother for being poor. In bed that night she'd felt the hard lump of despair welling up inside her throat. "Why does money have to matter so much?" she'd thought bitterly.

Then one day, while waiting in the check-out line at the grocery store, Kim had noticed a poster announcing the town's annual bike race. "Oh, how Mike would love that bike!" she'd thought wistfully. Suddenly she'd had an idea. She was a fast biker; she had both the endurance necessary to pedal the long laps quickly and the agility needed to take sharp turns easily. "I'll do it!" she'd said to herself, her heartbeat increasing as she rapidly began to form detailed plans. "If I can't buy a bicycle, I'll win one for him!" The cash register rang loudly, as if to reinforce her decision.

The days grew into weeks, and the weeks into months; the day of the race grew closer and closer.

Kim's mother shook her head each day, bewildered, as she watched her daughter rush into the house, speed through her chores, and dash back out again. Her eyes clouded with worry as she saw Kim push her bike into the garage at dusk, force down part of her supper, and fall into bed, exhausted.

Meanwhile Kim could feel her stamina increasing steadily; no longer did her muscles scream in pain after the first few miles. She was tired when she went to bed each night, but it was a good feeling. As the day of the race approached, Kim's excitement grew. She felt proud of the vague ache in her muscles; she knew the sense of accomplishment which comes with working steadily toward a goal.

As Kim's endurance and confidence increased, a creeping anxiety began to poison her happiness. Almost every day she would have to wrestle with some new problem in her rusty old bike. The weak brakes beginning to wear out, the rusted pedals were becoming increasingly difficult to push.

"It just can't break down now!" she wailed to herself as she tried to patch what seemed like the millionth hole in her tire. "Not after all this work!" Furiously she sucked in her breath and gave her bike a hard kick. Then she ran into the house slamming the door behind her.

Now she felt remorse as she thought of all the joy that bike had given her. She remembered that cold Christmas day many years ago.

Still half asleep, Kim had been led to the garage, where her expression had changed from confusion to joy, surprise and awe. She tore her eyes from the bike to look at her father's glowing face. Kim had been very young, but she was old enough to realize how much her father must have given up in order to give her this lovely surprise.

Kim began to smile as she remembered the week after Christmas when her father had taught her to ride. She thought of his strong arms as he picked her up after she'd fallen. "I can't do it!" she'd sobbed.

"Yes you can," he'd said in a gentle voice. "You can do anything you set your mind to. You're a winner, Kim."

Now, as she rounded the bend to start her final lap, Kim felt the stitch her side growing from a vague ache to a sudden, biting pain. She felt suddenly dizzy, and through her glazed eyes, she could see a boy on a red ten-speed moving into the lead. "No, no!" thought Kim. "It's not fair! He can't win; he's already got a brand new bike!" She felt a blister tear open on her heel, and it was the last straw. There was no way she could even win in this unjust world, just as there was no way she could win against a boy with a new ten-speed. What was the use?

Suddenly she caught sight of a black-haired boy peering at her anxiously from the back row. Mike! And as she strained to see his face more clearly, her father's words echoed in her ears. "You're a winner, Kim!" She felt a surge of determination, and she could sense the energy coursing through her entire body. She gave a terrific push and shot ahead over the last few yards, breaking the ribbon to the tune of a thousand shouts and two thousand clapping hands.

"Kim? Thanks for the bike," Mike said shyly, as they wheeled the two bikes into their garage. "You're really a great biker to beat all those kids with that piece of junk?" he said proudly.

Don't call it a piece of junk, Mike. It's a very special bike. And about winning the race. "Kim said, "Sometimes it doesn't take a brand new bike to be a winner. Sometimes it just takes determination. Or maybe caring about somebody." her voice trailed off.

"Huh?"

"Oh, nothing," Kim answered. There was plenty of time for all that later on. "C'mon. I'll teach you to ride it!"

Mike looked at her uncertainly. "What if I can't?"

Kim looked into his black eyes, thinking how much he looked like his father. Then she said slowly, "You can do anything you set your mind to, Mike. You're a winner, too."

Rond anda round anda round anda round
The blond head, not yet four years old, bobs in time,
Mesmerized
Eyes carefully focusing
Over and over
Trying so hard to catch sight of something
For a second
The warmth of the dryer feels so cozy
While snowflakes fall on the shivering grass
The spiraling wheel brings back memories of happier times
A merry-go-round, cotton candy, a nice warm feeling inside
Round anda round anda round anda round And then
It stops
A rough hand on the small shoulder
"Get out of my way!"
The warmth, the memories —
All gone
Until another hand inserts another dime
To again transform the cold, stark machine
Into a fantasy world

Days Of You

Yesterday was a day, just an ordinary day —
A day to laugh, a day to pray, a day on a tray
Because . . . you're your way

Today was a day, a beautiful day —
Do you know why today came today?
Because . . . it happened that way

Tomorrow's another day and when it comes —
It'll be a beautiful day, no matter how gray
Because . . . you make it that way

I walked around the corner and looked at the farm where I had spent many summers. The golden sunshine of the wheat fields over the valley of green corn fields started memories flooding through my mind. My first puppy. My seventh birthday party. My first horseback ride. The only times in my life I had been truly happy. My aunt and uncle.

You see, they are why I came back. I have not seen them since I moved to Florida five years ago. My uncle is very old and his mind is slowly going. Oh, how I regret not coming to see them for so long. In a way I guess I am going to pay my last respects. I really don't like funerals.

As I neared the quaint farmhouse which cradled the wooden ceiling beams I had loved as a child, my aunt flung open the door. Tears sprang to my eyes as I realized how much older she had gotten. Still she bustled down the steps in that old familiar way giving me her famous giant bear hug that even a bear would be jealous of.

We walked inside the door and I saw my uncle napping on the couch. He looked so small, so feeble, so unlike himself. As I stood looking at him my aunt placed a small envelope in my hand.

"To my favorite niece from her favorite uncle," it read on the outside.

My aunt spoke softly, "He wrote this letter a year ago, and wanted me to give it to you next time you come to visit."

I sat down and with shaking fingers slowly opened it and began to read.

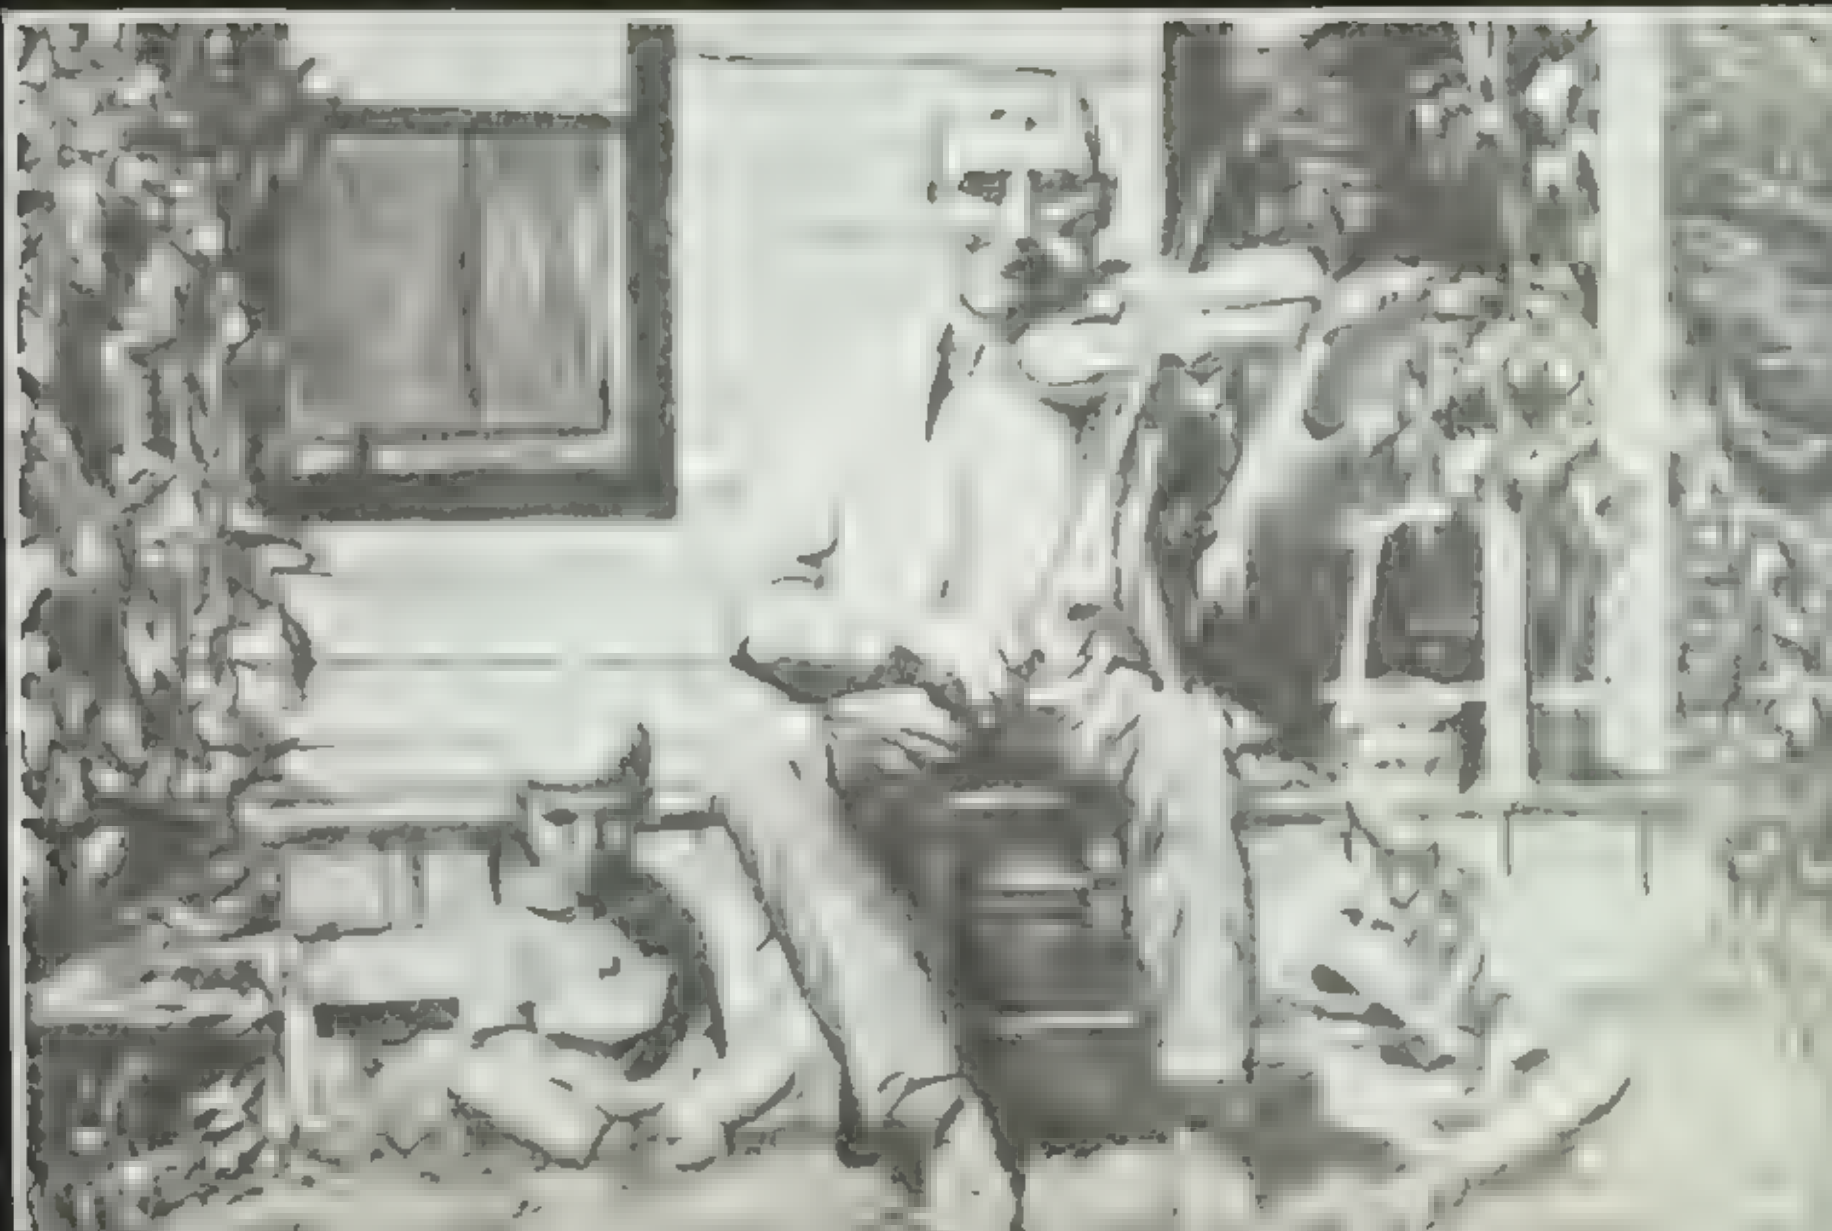

My niece:

I know when you see me next I may not remember you. The doctor told me that the fall from the roof I took years ago is making me forget things. Do not let that hurt you for I wish to be remembered as I was before. I still love you. Do not come to my funeral. They are only a show. Do not pity me. I have lived 75 of the most wonderful years in the world. My main goal in life was to be happy. I have achieved that goal which is something few people do in a lifetime. Do not mourn me. That would only sadden you. Please carry on my longing of life. Live it to be happy. Enjoy every facet of it. The smallest object and the largest creation each have very special things to offer. Do not regret. Regret only takes away from the happy things in the present. Get to know yourself. Only then can you learn to know others. Believe in yourself. These things above all will make you truly happy.

The Sea Is

The sea is quite calm
the waves are at rest,
The waters so blue
it looks its best,
When the whitewash hits
the shimmering sand,
It looks like diamonds
in the palm of your hand,
And when the sun rises
the water does glow,
It reminds you of lights
shining on the snow.

If I say, "I love you" am I chained forever?
My feelings sometimes change like the changing of the weather

Forever is a long time, forever is beyond eternity. That is what forever is in the eyes of society

My forever is — as long as there's still love as long as we both care, it may not be too long, but time enough to share

That is what my forever is in the thoughts of me Please don't chain me to something that I just can't be

A Friend

A diamond's but a piece of glass
Your times of triumph soon will pass
And in the end your gold's just brass
A friend is much, much more

Your pleasant days will never come back
In time you'll sell your Cadillac
And antique vases all must crack
A friend is much, much more

Your money through the years you'll spend
Your clothes of silk you'll have to mend
Oh, don't you wish you had a friend
A friend is much, much more

Don't envy he with affluence
For on his wealth he must depend
Don't envy those with power hence
But envy he who has a friend

Mother: My Life Line

I laid my life in your hands,
you gently caressed it
And like the flowing lands,
I knew you would never quit

When I fell apart,
you picked up the pieces
I knew in my heart,
you'd smooth out the creases

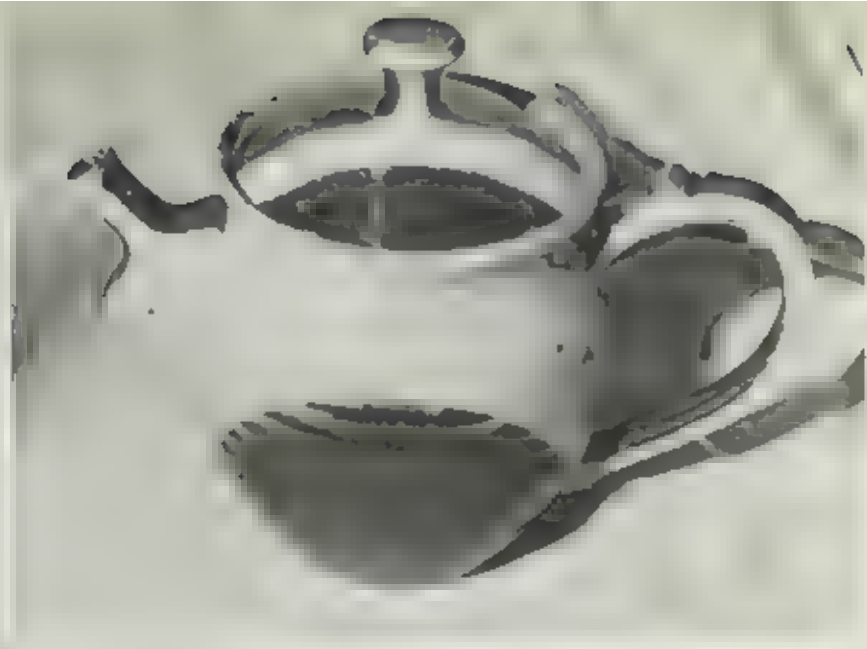

When I saw all my fears,
I would call out your name
At the thought of it my heart sears
You never made me feel lame

You always came through
You were always there
I could depend on you
You had that certain flair

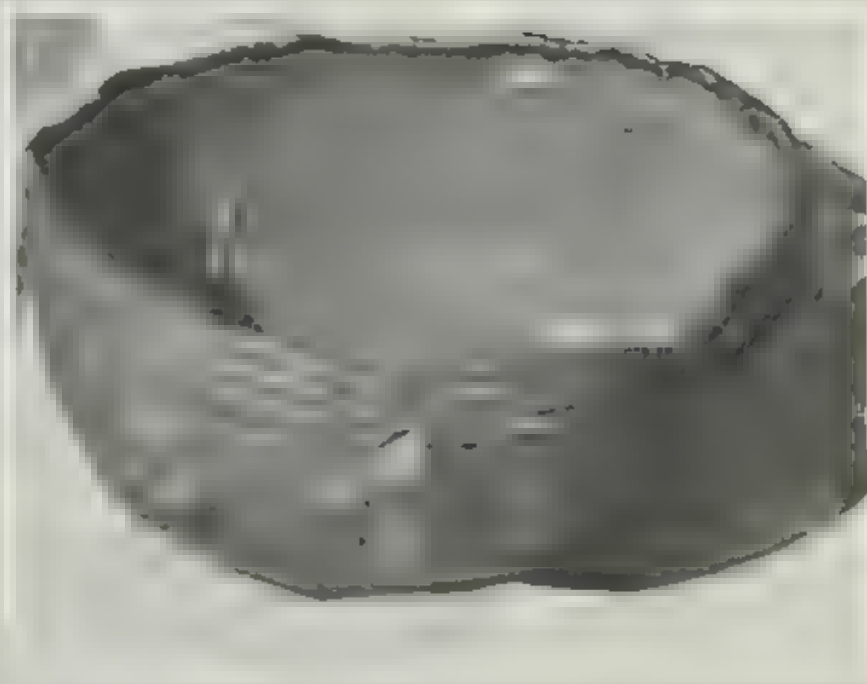

But now I have matured
I can take care of myself
My inactivity is cured
I am no longer a doll on a shelf

But you I will never forget
You know it is true,
since that day in the labor room where we met
I have always loved you

Dedicated

To The Lady Eagles of 1978-1979

Eagles are here and they're really hot,
With Velita Rollerson and her corner shot.
Miss Deenie Ware who can get on down,
And Debra Dyer who can snag a rebound.
Tammi McCall who's quick with a fake,
And Nemi Riley to shoot a jay.
Lawenna Gelsner and her pivoting pass,
And Sandra Scarborough who gets down the court fast.
Then there's seven other players on the bench,
Ready to shoot and play tough defense.

And these are the Lady Eagles,
and you know it's right,
Because the Lady Eagles
are out-of-sight.

Echoes

I thought as you thought
You put the thoughts in my mind,
I spoke as you spoke
You put the words in my mind.
Only you spoke quietly in soft little whispers,
And I shouted loudly for all to hear.
But they only heard you.
Your words
Your thoughts
Even though they saw me.

Memories Of You And Me

I'm just sitting here in this lonely apartment, listening to sad songs on the radio and looking at the wall to wall snapshots of you and me.

Memories began to flow through my mind, bringing out the secrets we had in sharing our love and filling the days with so much joy.

From the first day we met, I knew deep down inside we were a pair of young foolish kids who didn't care if the world stopped turning, but in every possible way I loved you.

Our friends and relatives were telling us what to do with our lives and how to pick other suitable partners. They didn't care about our feelings or how it hurt when they said our relationship wouldn't last long.

You would dry my tears away and whisper in my ear that everything would be alright once we analyzed our true feelings for each other and held onto those strong feelings.

I can't forget how you and I fought every inch of the way in proving they were wrong and we were right, but somewhere along the time I got the distinct impression that we couldn't go on like that.

We tried to separate for awhile and date other people but that didn't work out for either of us, so we spent so much time together in the summers and in our spare time.

In that year we were making plans for the future. You were to go into the Coast Guard and be sent overseas. I was to finish up my last year of high school and work part time in saving enough money for us.

Every month you would write long romantic letters explaining how much you loved me and how you were counting the months until you could hold me in your strong embraces for eternity.

I don't know where it went wrong between us. Your letters stopped coming in the mail and you never bothered to pick up the phone. From then on I assumed you found someone else to keep the days from being lonely.

All the feelings I had for you were subsiding and I was losing the hope of ever seeing you again. My life began to drift down the drain and end before my eyes.

I saw no reasons at all for living or caring about another human being, but from out of the clear blue sky you show up on my doorstep and enter my life again.

A Place For Me

My favorite pastime is to sit and dream of a quiet place and quiet moments. I can close my eyes and a scene, so real I feel as if I could reach out and touch it, comes before my mind's eye. It's spring and I am in a mountain glen lying beside a stream. The softness and greenness of the grass is my bed and it's thickness, my pillow. The trees around the glen are thick, forming the walls of my room. My music comes from the birds, accompanied by the light wind rustling through the trees around me and the trickling of the stream beside me. The beautiful blue of the sky, framed by the tops of the trees, is the picture I look at as I lie there. What else do I need? Conversation, you say? Although they are without words, I have conversations with God. For who needs words to tell Him how the beauty He created is appreciated. Right now this is only a dream, but, who knows, maybe one day I'll find this place. Until that day, though, I have my special place in my mind.

Friends

I always thought that a friend was a person who knew who you were and liked you anyway. Who took your good points as well as bad points and accepted them because they were an important part of you.

I always thought that a friend was a person who you could always count on to keep you company, to share your secrets and fears.

Being a friend and having a friend have always been so important to me, I really couldn't imagine a meaningful life without them.

My problem is that when I have a friend,
I give him everything I've got,
all my time, my opinions, my sense of humor,
my tears, but no one ever cared to give them back.

Through the turning, changing tides of friends
there are times when I'd give up everything just to keep my new friend
Seldom do I remember that friends as well as good times,
slowly move on to just memories.
